Patricia Harman, Distinguished Service Award

Though she never attended Potomac State, Patricia has been a strong supporter of the College for more than a decade. Her dedication to PSC began in 1998 with the establishment of the Chester D. Harman, MD, Memorial Scholarship. The scholarship, named in memory of her husband, provides financial support for a freshman and sophomore majoring in pre-medicine or pre-pharmacy from either Grant or Pendleton counties.

Patricia has made multiple donations to the College enabling such projects as the preservation and exhibition of the West Virginia Prep Cistern Collection housed in the Mary F. Shipper Library. She also contributed to the mounted statue at the campus entrance which welcomes students and guests to "Catamount Country."

Patricia was the recipient of the Citizenship Award in 1995 from the Seneca Rocks VFW in Seneca Rocks, W.Va. She is a 1953 graduate of Harman High School and currently resides in Petersburg, W.Va.

Amber Myers, Young Alumni Award

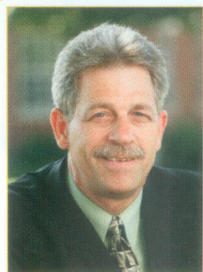

Amber received her associate degree in early childhood education from Potomac State in 2006; she earned her Regents Bachelor of Arts Degree with an emphasis in child development from WVU that same year. She also earned a master's degree in elementary education with an emphasis in early childhood education in December 2008.

Amber has worked at the Catamount Children's Center (a childcare center in partnership with Potomac State) for the past eight years. She is the recipient of the prestigious Terri Lynne Lokoff/Children's TYLENOL National Child Care Teacher Award which acknowledges the critical role of child care teachers in providing quality early care and education.

Amber, who has received Three-Star Directors Credentials from WVU, is currently working on a second master's degree in reading.

"My main goal is to create a learning environment for all children to grow and express themselves," said Amber. Her personal interests are in Autism Spectrum Disorders and using sign language to enhance learning in the classroom. She believes in teaching civic responsibility at an early age and has her students raise money as a class to support the Cystic Fibrosis and the Leukemia and Lymphoma Foundations. Do Catamounts Care?

This past spring, the Catamount Spirit ran a picture of our mascot with tears in her eyes. The caption pointed out that we were saddened to announce that, due to a lack of funds, the Alumni Association would no longer be able to provide the Catamount Spirit in a printed format. Over the course of the summer it became obvious to me that doing so was not fair to the College. There are many exciting things happening here and we need to share them with our alumni and friends. We have great students, a dedicated group of faculty and a very hardworking staff. These people have done so much to advance Potomac State College in the six years that I have been here that I could not let their efforts go unnoticed. Likewise, we have many outstanding alumni and friends who deserve our recognition and appreciation. So, for at least one more time, the Catamount Spirit is being distributed in its printed format. I am pleased that donations have been made available to allow us to do so. For those individuals technically inclined, the Catamount Spirit is also available on the Web site (www.potomac-statecollege.edu) under Alumni and Friends.

On this the 80th anniversary of our mascot, it is my hope that more Catamounts will show that they care by supporting the production of the Catamount Spirit. If Catamounts everywhere would donate just $5 each, we would not have to worry whether or not we could make such an important and informational printed publication available.

I hope that you will join us for our Homecoming festivities on September 26th. We will be recognizing some of our most distinguished alumni and most generous friends. Homecoming is one of the highlights of our year and our opportunity to show you how your alma mater has grown. If you are unable to attend, please stay in touch and should you wish to be a part of making the year of the Catamount one to remember, please consider sending a donation to the Potomac State College Alumni Association.

We thank you for your support and continued interest in Potomac State.

Alumni Spotlight

Mabel and Bill Thompson both attended Potomac State from 1935 – 1937; however, they didn't have any classes together, nor did they meet while in College, yet they celebrated 67 years of marital bliss this past July.

Mabel and Bill met in 1941 when they returned to the College for Homecoming Weekend and were invited to lunch by a mutual friend. "She showed up wearing a red and black dress, my favorite colors, and I couldn't keep my eyes off of her," said Bill. They were married in 1942.

Bill graduated from WVU with a degree in chemical engineering. His first job was at the old Celanese plant in Cumberland, Md. Bill also worked as an adjunct instructor at Potomac State at night. Bill eventually retired in 1981 after having been employed with the former Westvaco (NewPage) for thirty plus years. During his career he served as mill manager.

Mabel taught at Ridgeley High School in W.Va. for one year before going to work for Potomac Light & Power Company. She then returned to teaching and taught at Bruce High School in Westernport, Md. until her retirement.

Both found themselves back at the College recently at a ceremony which was being attended by Governor Joe Manchin, but neither one knew why.

It turns out that when Mabel was in the eighth grade, she earned the highest grade on the Golden Horseshoe test which determines who will be awarded a trip to the state capitol in Charleston, W.Va. and be pinned as a Golden Horseshoe winner. Unfortunately, Mabel's appendix ruptured and instead of heading to Charleston, she spent the next four weeks in the hospital recovering from surgery. What makes this story unique is that

Flower and Garden Show Update

The first Potomac State Alumni Flower and Garden Show was well attended, offered a variety of vendors and according to attendee John Harvey, "...organizers of the event are to be commended."

The event was held at the indoor riding arena which provided ample space for vendors, entertainment, demonstrations, and of course, flowers.

The PSC Alumni Association would like to thank everyone who donated flowers, time and money to make this event successful. A special thanks to our co-sponsor, Chesapeake Energy.

Liz Beavers, managing editor of the Mineral Daily News-Tribune, stated in her column, "The flower show, held at Potomac State's new riding arena above Stayman Field, was very well planned and provided a lot of plants and outdoor-related items to buy, as well as information for all of us weekend gardeners. I hope that it will turn into an annual event ... sort of Keyser's celebration of the coming of spring. Good job to all those involved!"

Next year's Flower and Garden Show will be held on Saturday, May 15, 2010.

this was the first time the Golden Horse-shoe test had been given.

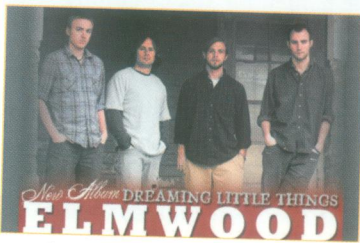

The years passed and eventually a gentleman named Terry LaRue happened upon the fact that Mabel had never been pinned by the governor of West Virginia (as is required) so, therefore; LaRue set out to right the oversight.

This past June 11th, Bill watched from the sidelines as his wife was pinned and knighted by Governor Manchin. "I didn't know what was going on. I was just told to be here. What a surprise to be knighted after all this time!" said Mabel.

Both Mabel and Bill hold Potomac State dear to their hearts and have therefore made provisions for the College in their will by becoming members of The Church Society.

LEAVE A LEGACY®

Make A Difference In The Lives That Follow

Walking around the Potomac State College of WVU's campus is always a pleasant experience. During the semesters, you'll see many students hurrying off to classes in over 49 majors. The small campus setting makes everyone feel at home.

The future of Potomac State College is a bright one. The number of two-year and four-year programs is growing and providing an expanded opportunity to learn. As many understand, private support for the College is more crucial than ever.

A simple way to join with those who want to improve Potomac State's future is to become a member of The Church Society by including a gift provision in your will or revocable trust. Give your attorney the wording of "to the WVU Foundation for the benefit of Potomac State College of WVU" and your special support can be put in place at the same time you provide for your family's future.

Choosing to set up a scholarship for students in any program, providing for faculty development, or supporting library and technology needs are wonderful directions. For certain amounts, a gift fund can be endowed so that it will last forever and yield annual income which will carry out the purpose you choose. Such a permanent endowment fund can be named for you or anyone you choose to honor.

To learn more or to let us know that you've already taken this important step to support Potomac State, contact Libby Nichols, Alumni/Development Associate, at (304) 788-6870 or lnnichols@mail.wvu.edu. Together we can make a difference.
